N. B. Hays' name will be placed first on the ballot in the Democratic primary to be held on November 6 and Senator McCreary's name will be placed last. The other names will be between, with the contested offices coming first and the uncontested offices next. The arrangement was decided upon by the subcommittee of the Democratic Executive Committee at a meeting held at The Seelbach for the purpose of completing the arrangements for the primary.

Little Virginia Hayes, of Donerail, Fayette county, daughter of T. P. Hayes, the horseman, drew the names of the candidates from a hat and decided which name should precede in each of the races where there is a contest. The little girl, looking perfectly composed, although surrounded by a roomful of strange men, all of whom were watching her, stood on a table and drew the slips of paper on which the names of the candidates had been written. She did not understand what it was all about, but seemed to get some fun out of the arrangement.

No Merchant Can Succeed Without Advertising.

"I do not believe in the mail-order citizen."

Gov. Joseph W. Folk, in addressing the retail merchants of Missouri at their convention at Jefferson City recently, spoke against the mail order business and favored advertising in town papers. He said in part:

"We are proud of our splendid cities, and we want them to increase in wealth and population and we also want our country towns to grow. We wish the city merchant to build up, also desire the country merchants to prosper. I do not believe in a mail order citizen. If a place is good enough for a man to live in and to make his money in, it is good enough for him to spend his money.

"No merchant can succeed without advertising in one way or another."

TWO HISTORICAL WEDDINGS.

Marriage of John Laydon and Anne Burras First Instance of Title Hunting in America.

(By Silas E. Snyder.)

Norfolk, Va.--The eternal feminine delighting at all times in things matrimonial will lay aside reports of social doings at the summer resorts and advertisements of new fangled fruit cans to read about a wedding even if it did occur nigh on to three hundred years ago.

In this case there are two and it is doubtful if an account of them would be dug up at the present time were it not that they have to do indirectly with the Jamestown Exposition which is to be held next year at a point not far from the scene of both these early social events. E. F. V.'s were not heard of in those days, but for real, simon pure F. F. V.'ism the first of these nuptials has the latter day society dashed to the mast; in fact it marked the beginning of the first family of Virginia. The second was the first instance of title hunting in America with the reversed conditions that the bride an American, had the title, and the hunter was an untitled Englishman. There were no bridesmaids, no dianers with terrapin and truffles, no checks for a million dollars and no press accounts of the trousseau but there were some distinguished people present and in some way the news leaked out.

The first installment of Jamestown settlers was a stag outfit with such noble old rounders as Captain John Smith in the bunch, but never a petticoat, and no wonder things didn't go just right. In the absence of this gentle influence one can fancy the doughty Captain and old sport Powhatan pitching norseshoes for tobacco (Powhatan's tobacco) under Powhatan's Oak and getting tipsy on Dismal Swamp water.

But when the second contingent of settlers arrived there were two ladies among them, or rather one lady, Mistress Forest, and her maid, Anne Burras. Imagine the rubbering that took place when the flags of their femininity were seen to flutter on the docks of Jamestown. There was one citizen of the town that wasn't slow. This was John Laydon. At lovemaking he must have been a regular Corsair. He assailed the gentle Anne with horse, foot and dragoons, sabred her coyness, rode over her objections, broke down her defenses, forcibly seized her consent and bore her away to the altar before she had begun to feel at home. Just two months after she landed this fourteen year old maid had changed her name from Burras to Laydon. It is conjectured that Captain Smith gave away the bride. All this happened in December 1608 and the next year John and Anne presented to the worthy Council of Virginia the first child born of English parents. "It" was a girl and she was called Virginia. In 1639 when Virginia was 21 the Virginia Court officially recognized this important event by presenting to the distinguished young lady five acres of land in Elizabeth City County, Va., which lies just across Hampton Roads from the Jamestown Exposition. It may be interesting to note that three other daughters came to bless the Laydons--Catharine, Alice and Margaret.

That other wedding was the title-hunting affair. It seems that John Rolfe, Secretary of the Colony of Virginia, succeeded in convincing the royal maiden, Pocahontas, that Captain John Smith was dead, and believing him dead, she yielded to the importunities of Rolfe and married him. That she loved Smith first and always is the conclusion of many who are familiar with the annals of the colony. When after her marriage she met him in London she exclaimed: "They told me always that you were dead." Those words told of the tragedy of a heart.

Acquitted by Courtmartial.

Washington, Oct. 9.--Acting Secretary Newbury of the navy department approved the findings of acquittal by the courtmartial in the case of Captain Samuel P. Comley, who was tried recently on charges growing out of the collision of the Alabama and Illinois off Brenton's Reef, R. I., July 21. Captain Comley was in command of the Alabama at the time and a court of inquiry recommended his courtmartial and also that of Lieutenant Alfred W. Pressey, who was officer of the deck of the Alabama at the time of the collision. The action of the court in regard to Lieutenant Pressey was received, and it is understood that he was also acquitted.

Claim Hams Are Doctored.

Philadelphia, Oct. 9. -- Warrants were sworn out by Dr. B. H. Warren, dairy and food commissioner, for the arrest of the Philadelphia managers of Armour & Company, charging the firm with the illegal use of boric acid in hams. Samples purchased at the branch house of Armour & Company were analyzed by Professor Lawall, chemist of the department, and show, it is alleged, that the hams were "doctored" with boric acid. It is reported that subpoenas will be issued for the heads of the firm of Armour & Company in Chicago for the purpose of ascertaining whether the "doctoring" of the meat is performed in Chicago or in this city.

House Burned; Three Perish.

Staubenville, O., Oct. 9.--His home destroyed by flames and the dead bodies of his aged father and two small children were the sight which met the eyes of Charles Zende, a farmer on McIntyre creek, when he returned home from a short trip. The cause of the fire is a mystery. The dead are: Christian Zende, 75; Henry Zende, 5, and Mary Zende, 4. All were found near a door leading out of the house. They evidently were suffocated by smoke. The aged man apparently made a heroic effort to save the lives of his two grandchildren before he was overcome by the smoke.

Joke's Sad Sequel.

Milford, O., Oct. 11.--Miss Goldie Raper, 18, swallowed an ounce of carbolic acid at her home in Felicity, O., and died several minutes afterward. Several days ago she found a letter in her sweetheart's coat addressed "My Dearest Husband." The youth could not convince her that he was not married even when one of her own friends confessed that she had written the letter for a joke, and the girl, despondent, took her own life.

New Race Grounds.

The plant will be completed in time for a meeting next summer.
